Kennedy Doesn't Object to Probe

Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D.-Mass.) has said he is not convinced that there is a need to reopen the investigation into the assassination of his brother, former President John F. Kennedy. However, he said he has no objection to a new investigation.

A Boston newspaper said Senator Kennedy has said that he thought the case of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King might be the one with questions still unanswered. But he said his only reservation about a new investigation is that it may be hard on his mother, Mrs. Rose Kennedy.

The house of representatives in Washington has created a special committee to investigate the assassinations of President Kennedy and Dr. King.
